“ When prom rolled around, my boyfriend asked my sister, Jane, to prom instead of me. Her response was "sure". He showed up in a limo (very uncommon in the 70's). Jane met him at the door wearing cut offs and a raggedy T-shirt with curlers in her hair. She was waving her hands around to dry the fresh nail polish. "Was that tonight?! Oh, I'm sorry. There's no way I can go."

She got tired of boys showing up late for a date, so she started scheduling 3 a night. Whoever showed up first got to take her out. She was vivacious, cute and funny.

She was kind and compassionate, but didn't tolerate repeated bad behavior.

She loved giving gifts. She could be very generous with her time. She also loved to cook and share her food and recipes with others.

I'll miss her in this life, but look forward to being reunited with her in Heaven. I am so grateful for God's promises.
