“ Linda and I became friends around 1975. I had just had my third child and we lived close by each other. We would often walk to each others house and we both loved our Coca Cola so we always shared. We also shared our children and made lots of memories. We shed tears together and told each other many secrets that we never shared with anyone else. When they decided to move to Tennessee, we shared one last coke and cried our hearts out. After seeing each other almost everyday, we knew it would be a long time before we would meet again. It was about 20 years before we saw each other again. I went to Tennessee to see her and we had a wonderful 2 days together...lots of tears and happiness and of course.....shared a coke. Now my dear friend is gone and I am so very sad. But Linda, we will meet again in Heaven someday and share another Coke. I miss you my friend and I love you. Your good friend, DIANNA
